Headline:
Rain and snow in north, drier in south today.

Today:
Rain, sleet and snow across Scotland moving slowly south this morning and decaying over northeast England later. Heavy, squally showers across southern UK moving quickly east this morning, then mainly dry with some sunshine.

Tonight:
A few wintry showers across northeast coasts, but dry with clear spells and widespread frost in north. Cloudier in south with rain spreading eastwards overnight.

Saturday:
Dry and sunny in north. Rain across central and southern UK, falling as snow over Welsh hills and then across some southern parts before clearing away south during the afternoon.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
A cold, frosty start on Sunday, largely fine before rain and snow arrives from the southwest. A dry day for many on Monday, further rain and snow then spreading northeast.
